Three graduates of Iowa State University's College of Veterinary Medicine have been given the Stange Awards in recognition of their outstanding professional achievement.

The awards were presented Saturday, June 5, 1982, in the Sun Room of the Memorial Union as part of the ISU Alumni Associations Alumni Days.

Recipients of this year's awards were Duane T. Albrecht, of Denver, Colo., a 1950 graduate; Harlan E. Jensen of Fort Myers, Fla., and Samuel D. Linn of Humboldt, both 1941 graduates.

Albrecht is the senior partner in a three-man practice—the Aspenwood Animal Hospital in Denver. He is also heavily involved in state and national veterinary organizations and was chosen as president-elect of the American Veterinary Medical Association for 1982. Albrecht has received numerous awards for his veterinary work, most noteworthy is the American Animal Hospital Association Award for outstanding service to the veterinary profession.

Jensen is the chief of ophthalmology and professor emeritus in the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Missouri, Columbia. He has written two books, several articles, has invented an ear-trimming machine and has pioneered research in veterinary ophthalmology and the use of ultrasound with animals. He has received numerous professional honors and has served in national veterinary medicine leadership roles. He is originally from Saint Ansgar.

Linn has been in general practice in Humboldt since 1941. He has served as president of the American Association of Veterinary Medical Examining Boards, is a member and vice chairman of the A.V.M.A. Council on Veterinary Service and is chairman of the Iowa Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners, among other state and national positions.

The Stange award is named in honor of C. H. Stange, dean of veterinary medicine at Iowa State from 1909 to 1936.
